Bottles

Cecil Munsey, Bottles Editor of Western Collector magazine, is a school teacher in San Diego, California. He holds degrees in English, History, Psychology and recently completed work for his Master's degree in Education. A sound background in the study of bottles has qualified Mr. Munsey as one of the world's leading bottle experts. He is renowned as a consultant and has long been a contributing writer to leading national publications. After two years as editor of The Bottleneck, monthly publication of the San Diego Bottle Club, Mr. Munsey became editor of Bottle World, the monthly bottle section of Western Collector magazine. "Would You Believe," a book of unique and unusual facts about bottles, is Mr. Munsey's latest release and is available at leading booksellers.

Millicent Holmberg is well known for her extensive background in the fine arts and has had exhibits in both painting and sculpture. Her attraction to the grace and charm of figural bottles started about 10 years ago, and led her to open her own shop in Lomita, California, called "The Glass Bottle." Here the collecting and display of figural bottles has brought world wide fame to Mrs. Holmberg and she is a leading authority in this exciting collecting field. A regular contributing writer and well known for her work as editor of The Glasshopper, monthly publication of the Glasshoppers Figural Bottle Association, Mrs. Holmberg writes a monthly column, Fascinating Figurals, in Western Collector magazine.
